St Mary's Parish, Tallaght.

The Dominican Friars moved to Tallaght in 1856 and built the Priory on the site of Tallaght Castle, part of which forms the present structure. The Retreat house was built in 1957. The extension to the church was finished in 1970.

St Mary's Parish, Tallaght.

Tallaght was part of the Rathfarnham parish for centuries, but with the growth in Tallaght in the 1960s, the parish of Bohernabreena-Firhouse was formed in 1969. In Sept 1972, Archbishop Dr Dermot Ryan entrusted Dominicans with the care of the Parish of St. Mary's Tallaght. This included Central Tallaght and Kilnamanagh before Kilnamanagh became a separate parish in 1974

St Mary's Parish, Tallaght.

St. Mary's comprised of four administrative districts, and so 3 new churches were built: St. Dominic's in Millbrook (1975), St. Aengus's in Tymon North (1975) and St Martin's in Old Bawn (1976), each with a small residential unit for its own Dominican team. These divided into four parishes in 1985, with St Martin's being returned to the diocesan clergy in 1999.
